President's Report

To the Board of Directors and Members of the San Francisco Maternity:

Another year has passed and, though an uneventful one, we can but be thankful for what has been accomplished. Our work has increased and more women have been cared for than ever before. The affiliation of a year and a half ago, with the Hospital of the University of California, has proved a success, and the poor women amongst whom we work have the greatest cause to be thankful that such an affiliation became possible and was accomplished. At first there was much that was experimental and there were many situations to be met, and I would like to say, that in every one has Dr. D'Ancona proved himself a staunch friend, doing all in his power to save expense and advance the interest of the San Francisco Maternity.

At the Dispensary everything has progressed smoothly and well, Mrs. DeVallin, as in the past, doing her part to facilitate the work of the Medical Director, Interne and nurses. The details of the work there have been kept well in hand by the Executive Committee with its very capable Chairman, who, through the entire year, has been most faithful to her duties.

But to carry on all this work at the Dispensary and the work done on the outside at the homes of the poor women, money is needed. The only income that this Society has is from its subscribing members. This income is so small that it would not carry on the work but a very short time out of the year, so it has to be augmented from time to time by the proceeds from some kind of an entertainment. In 1908, through Mrs. Harry N. Gray, Miss Stewart was engaged to come out to San Francisco from New York and arrange a Kirmess for the benefit of the San Francisco Maternity. This affair was so successful, that, before Miss Stewart left San Francisco, she was engaged to return in the future. As in the first case the Managers of the Children's Hospital, with their auxiliaries, were invited to participate in this second Kirmess, which they did, and again in 1910 these two charities worked side by side to accomplish another success, for success it certainly has proved to be, both from an artistic as well as a financial standpoint. While the financial success was not as pronounced as in 1908, owing to the many prevailing conditions, I feel that we have every reason to be satisfied with the results and I wish to take this occasion to thank the members of this Board who have so conscientiously worked to make this success. And no praise is too high for Miss Stewart, who always proved such a tower of strength and ready to meet any emergency.

At the end of seven years we find ourselves with $10,000 in the bank; with one endowed bed which cost us $10,000, and the use of three others; making four beds under our control. We have always entertained a hope that in some way we would be able to erect a dispensary of our own, thus enabling us to establish a point where mothers could learn how to care for their babies and how to feed them, also where women could go for free treatment when necessary. With this dispensary, one of our main objects (never yet accomplished) could be carried out, that of establishing a milk laboratory for bottle-fed infants of the poor. If the Society had a lot now a building would be an easy thing to accomplish, and our work would grow and our benefits would reach those who are so much in need of them.

Although this has been an uneventful year the work has gone on and increased in a remarkable manner as will be shown by the report of the Medical Director, Dr. Spalding.

It is with great regret and sorrow that I have to record the loss of two or our dear and oldest members: Mrs. H. H. Bancroft and Mrs. Margaret Deane. Mrs. Bancroft, whose death was several months ago, always had the deepest interest in the welfare of the San Francisco Maternity, and though not able to be with us in person, was willing at all times to do her share to help, and her home was always at our disposal as a place to hold meetings. She was a member of the first Board of Directors and before her health failed was always an active and earnest worker. Our dear Mrs. Deane, who was also a member of the Board at its organization, was with us until the very last. Those who were fortunate enough to have been at that last meeting in December will always remember her as faithful and strong of purpose to the end. She was always quick to see and give justice and it is not amiss to quote Bishop O'Connell when he said: "She lived for her neighbor in suffering, for her neighbor in poverty and for her neighbor in sorrow." Mrs. Deane was always ready to help the needy. We will miss her earnest work and her strong good advice. Hers will be a hard place to fill—but her memory will always be with us.

Before closing I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to the Board who has worked so faithfully this past year.

Respectfully submitted,

ANNIE C. METCALFE,

President.

Report of Medical Director

To the Board of Directors:

The Maternity has successfully completed seven years of charitable, educational and special medical work. It has under the most trying circumstances given good care to more than 1000 poor women and their new born babies, besides training several hundred medical students and nurses in practical obstetrics. So economically have the funds been handled that 151 home patients and 101 hospital patients or a total of 252 women have been confined this past year at an expense to the Society of only $2062.32.

All classes of the poor regardless of their creed, their race or their social condition have been attended and numerous other charitable institutions have been aided in giving maternity care to their many charges.

Experience teaches that a longer period of supervision should be given patients and more careful attention provided to protect the unborn child. At present with the home patients we seldom can see them more than once before confinement and cease our attentions as a rule ten days after labor. This is sufficient for the immediate welfare of most of the mothers and babies, but is far from sufficient in some cases. We should have sufficient help and sufficient resources to protect as far as we can the unborn child from the ravages of disease, degeneracy and poverty, and should continue the attention after confinement until both mother and baby are restored to a safe and sane degree of health.

To assume this added burden which sooner or later we must assume will necessitate first that the Society engage the services of a trained social worker; and second, that facilities be provided for the office or, if necessary, hospital treatment for some of the mothers postpartum, and laboratory facilities and clean milk for the feeding of bottle babies. In our present quarters this is impossible and the sooner the Society raises the necessary funds for a complete maternity clinic the sooner will the Maternity receive from the community that recognition and approval which the past seven years of arduous pioneering so justly deserves.

As can be seen from the following statistics greater demands are being made on the Dispensary than ever before.

The University of California Hospital has co-operated cordially in partially housing our Institution and in caring for our hospital patients.

Nurses

The Maternity co-operates with the training school of the University of California Hospital. Nurses from various hospitals receive a two months' course in the Maternity Department of the University of California Hospital following which the nurse devotes one month to the practical work of the Dispensary. These nurses give their entire time to the care of the Dispensary patients. Two nurses are always on duty ready for calls. The following nurses were in attendance:

Course in Practical Obstetrics

Open to the graduate and undergraduate students of all medical schools.

A systematic course of instruction is conducted by the Maternity for the benefit of medical students which is equal to the courses of instruction offered by some of the larger and older maternity clinics of the East, and which cannot be duplicated west of Chicago. Each course lasts two weeks, but can be repeated as often as desired. The student lives while on duty at the University of California Hospital, and assists with the ward work at the University as well as with the work in the homes of out-patients. The Maternity Ward, containing ten beds, four of which are free; the Nursery, two delivery rooms, the Milk Laboratory and the Pathological Laboratories are used to teach the students practical obstetrics. At the Dispensary for two days each week careful instruction is given in obstetric diagnosis. Normal labors are conducted in the homes of patients, while as many as possible of the abnormal cases are referred to the hospital for treatment. The number of patients at present is sufficient to employ the time of eight nurses and two students in addition to the regular staff of physicians. At present the student work is being conducted according to the following outline:

The above assigned work is carried out by the student in the interval of time not consumed by attending patients in labor. Practically all the time of the student is occupied from the beginning to the end of his service. The fee for the course, which includes lodging at the Hospital, is $25, payable in advance. Students must supply themselves with stethoscope, thermometer and tape-measure. All other supplies needed are furnished. Only two students can be on duty at a time, but the course continues throughout the entire year. Meals can be obtained at the Hospital or at restaurants for small cost. Applications should be made to the Medical Director. Instruction begins promptly at 8 a. m. on each Monday morning.

Patients

Women unable to pay for private attention are given the best of care by the doctors, nurses and students of the San Francisco Maternity. In cases of doubt, investigations are made by the Associated Charities in order to determine the needs of the patient and to avoid imposition. For patients desiring to be confined at home, office hours are held at the Dispensary building, 1195 Valencia Street, every Wednesday afternoon at 2 p. m. Patients needing hospital care are examined by the Medical Director at the Dispensary every Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. Suitable cases are given free cards, entitling the patient to admittance to the San Francisco Maternity Ward at the University of California Hospital. Patients are received regardless of race, religion or social condition.
